'Conspiracy Theories' in the News Again

• Mainstream media condemns "conspiracy theories" while spinning their own tales as "news"

> If Muslims owned nearly every news outlet in America, people would notice.

By Michael Collins Piper

*R*ecent attacks on AMERICAN FREE PRESS and its correspondents by high-level media forces have again brought into focus the issue of "conspiracy theories." Conservative voices such as The Wall Street Journal and National Review have loudly expressed their view that it is absolutely beyond the pale that AFP puts forth alternative explanations that counter government-sponsored theories and the official "party line" on a wide variety of issues and events.

So it's no coincidence that all — and we do mean all — of AFP's critics invariably claim AFP propagates "conspiracy theories."

Nor is it a coincidence — and let's be up front about this — that it always seems to be Jewish groups and pro-Israel voices (such as the aforementioned publications, along with their allies at the Anti-Defamation League) that are perpetually shouting about the "dangers" of "conspiracy theories"?

The irony is that these very complainers — and the mainstream media — are first and foremost in talking, on virtually a 24-7 basis, about "conspiracies" (real or imagined — quite often the latter) they claim threaten the Jewish people or the survival of Israel and/or "democracy in America" and Western civilization, all of which are conflated to mean the same thing.

Every day there's something in a major newspaper, the big magazines or on the broadcast networks or the Internet about some conspiracy of this sort. And we are supposed to accept, as a matter of fact, that these conspiracies are real, whereas any other theories, not approved by the people who control the media, are not.

It's not just "The Holocaust" they talk about— and, of course, they talk about that all of the time. It's worse than that.

Regular "threats" harped on include "the rise of anti-Semitism," accompanied by a host of terrorist plots by militia groups, "right-wing extremists" and Muslims.

As the record shows, virtually all of these so-called plots seem to have been orchestrated, in the first place, by the FBI utilizing a shameless parade of its own generally quite suspect and rather sordid informants.

And it just so happens that the aforementioned ADL — and groups such as the Southern Poverty Law Center — are always in the public eye (and behind the scenes) telling the FBI and other law enforcement precisely which alleged conspirators deserve to be targeted for special treatment.

As far back as 1944 — when Franklin Roosevelt conducted amass sedition trial aimed at Americans who had been critics of his drive to get the U.S. involved in World War II — it was the ADL that fed the FBI the "data" used to conjure up the sedition indictments against those Americans in the first place.

Today things haven't changed.

If anything, it's worse.

And have you noticed that if anyone dares mention that the big media, which promotes these approved conspiracy theories, is controlled by Jewish families and financial interests with interlocking connections to the banking elite who dominate the Federal Reserve money monopoly, the ADL and the media always say this is an "anti- Semitic canard"—part of yet another "conspiracy to defame the Jewish people" that supposedly originated with The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, which they claim is a "notorious forgery." It is a "myth," they insist, that Jewish power predominates in the major media.

A myth? Well, note that the following media outlets are all controlled by Jewish interests: ABC, CBS, NBC, CNN, MSNBC, Fox, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The New York Post, The New York Daily News, The Washington Post, The Los Angeles Times, The Chicago Tribune and Time, along with the now-defunct (but long influential) U.S. News and World Report and Newsweek.

This does not include dozens of other big magazines, such as The New Yorker, Parade and Vanity Fair, and smaller newspapers across the country, such as The Harrisburg Patriot and The Cleveland Plain Dealer, among others, controlled by the Newhouse family, who are major financial backers of the Anti-Defamation League.

In truth, none of these publications is mentioned in the Protocols that, in fact, were crafted before many of these publications (and certainly before all of the broadcast networks) came into being.

Is the Protocols really a "hoax"?

Well, responsible research into its history demonstrates it was the work of a famous Jewish philosopher, Asher Ginsberg, who led one of the factions in the late 19th-century gatherings of the World Zionist Congress. While Ginsberg may have plagiarized language used in other works to flesh out the rhetorical foundation of the Protocols — leading to the fallacious claim the Protocols is a fraud — The New Babylon summarizes the actual history of this much-talked-about work.

It is often also alleged that, in the 1920s — when automotive genius Henry Ford was publishing a newspaper critical of rising Jewish power in America — his reportage was based on the Protocols. Nothing could be further from the truth. Ford's articles were thoroughly documented presentations examining the Jewish role in the American arena.

And what's so intriguing is that Ford's articles of the 1920s reflect the same trends in the United States today. Simply change the names, and you'll find a new breed of intriguers who are heirs to those of Ford's day. And it is they who are the loudest in screaming about "conspiracy theories," when, of course, they may well be the biggest conspirators of all.
